Full job description

Your new company

This is a great opportunity to join a SME growth-oriented professional services organisation that has a national footprint. The company is strategically agile as a business and highly trusted by its clients, and is now recruiting its first CFO as it looks to undertake acquisitions of other small firms and then manage their Backoffice function in a services company and a possible ASX listing.

Your new role

The Chief Financial Officer, will provide strategic leadership to the firm as a member of the senior leadership team. They will be actively engaged in developing the long-term business strategies and financial plans, corporate finance, annual budgets, managing all accounting, financial, tax, compliance for a number of operating and corporate entities that make up the holding company. The position will establish financial policies, procedures and financial tools to provide financial insight into the operational performance and advice on potential acquisitions and possible IPO.

What you'll need to succeed

A high level of analytical thinking and financial interpretation capabilities, excellent interpersonal effectiveness and the ability to interact with the CEO and the Board members as a trusted business partner and to develop and lead a strong, talented finance team. Experience of acquisitions and ASX reporting will be highly regarded as well as time spent at a professional services firm.
